AFTERMATH OF EARTHQUAKE.

Scrapping Between Governor
and Mayor Over Question of Authority.

LIGHT TURNED ON.

Another Quake Wednesday
That Killed One Person
and Shook Down Walls

Santa Rosa, Cal., April 27.—At 3:15 Wednesday afternoon a shock of earthquake was felt. It lasted nearly a minute and caused considerable alarm, killing one person by a falling chimney. A number of walls of the burned buildings standing in weak condition were thrown down, and the frail buildings were considerably shaken up.

There was a spirited clash of words yesterday between Gov. Pardee and Mayor Schmitz over the demand for the discharge of the National guards.

SANTA ROSA'S LOSS.

Santa Rosa, Cal., April 27.—The latest figures show 41 dead, 63 injured and 17 missing here. The entire business section of Santa Rosa and many residences were destroyed. Twenty fires started but the water supply was unimpaired and within three hours the flames were under control. Cut off by the disaster from communication with the rest of the world Santa Rosa knew nothing of the destruction of San Francisco until the arrival from there of a train load of refugees, begging for help that could not be given them. Nearby towns came to the rescue.

BABY BORN ON LAWN.

Santa Rosa, Cal., April 27.—Mrs. Rudolph Spreckles, wife of the well known financier, presented her husband with an heir on the lawn in front of their mansion on Friday, when the family were awaiting the coming of the dynamite squad to blow up their magnificent residence.

San Francisco, April 27.—For the first time since the earthquake street lights were burning in San Francisco last night.

60,000 Buildings Destroyed.

San Francisco, April 27.—A map just published here of the burned district shows an area covering 453 city blocks, 111 of which are south of Market street and 342 at the north end. It is estimated that the buildings destroyed will be in the neighborhood of 60,000.

"Shocked" Together.

San Francisco, April 27.—The earthquake separated many couples, but reunited at least one. Mrs. Lela Frank, of this city, obtained from Judge Kerrigan on March 24 an interlocutory decree of divorce from Irving Frank. The terrors of the earthquake brought the pair together and this morning they sought out Judge Kerrigan and asked him to set aside the decree. A stroke of the pen made the old bonds as good as new and the couple after kissing in presence of the law, locked arms and went away smiling.

An appropriation of $15 was voted for the sufferers from the San Francisco catastrophe.

Dr. Wyatt will preach his last sermon at the Cumberland Presbyterian church tomorrow.

FIENDISH CRIME AT BAINBRIDGE.

Miss Blanche Smith Criminally Assaulted By a Negro Brute.

WARRANT SWORN OUT.

Deputy Sheriff Smith Sent
Yesterday to Arrest
Enoch Sims.

Miss Blanche A. Smith, a young woman 20 years of age, an orphan who lives with the family of Mr. James Williams, near Bainbridge, was assaulted by a negro man while alone at the Williams home last Tuesday about noon.

Miss Smith came to town yesterday and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Enoch Sims, a negro living on another farm belonging to Williams in the same neighborhood. The girl was accompanied by Williams, who stated that the matter had been kept quiet pending a search for the negro.

The girl's story is that she was alone in the house, getting dinner for the family in the kitchen, when Sims entered the kitchen, locked the door and by force and violence committed a criminal assault upon her. After accomplishing his purpose he left and as soon as she could do so she rang the farm bell to bring Mr. Williams to the house. She told her story to him and he with other neighbors finally located the hiding place of Sims Thursday night. Yesterday after securing the warrant he left with Deputy Sheriff Jewell Smith to make the arrest. As the locality is nearly twenty miles from town, the arrest had not been reported when we went to press.

Miss Smith is a poor but reputable girl, and the crime has aroused a good deal of feeling, though no very great excitement seems to prevail. There is no talk of mob law.

C. & T. R. RAILROAD

Has Reached Cadiz in Survey
Headed This Way.

The preliminary survey of the railroad which is proposed to be built by the Cairo and Tennessee River Railroad Company has been completed to Cadiz, Ky., and the surveying party has gone to Mayfield. The line as surveyed crosses the Tennessee river into Trigg county at Calloway ferry, on the Golden pond, and crosses Cumberland river a few hundred yards above the ferry at Canton; up the creek a short distance on by Dyer's chapel and down Canyon creek to Cadiz, crossing Little river and striking the Cadiz railroad a mile east of the town boundary. The corps has returned to Mayfield to begin the location of the route along which the road will be built. It will require about two months' time to locate the road between Cadiz and Mayfield, which is a distance, according to the survey just made, of fifty-two and six-tenths miles.

SCREEN LAW

Goes Into Effect Tomorrow
in This City.

The recently passed ordinance requiring the removal of screens from saloons on Sundays will go into effect tomorrow. The saloon men, without exception, have accepted the law in a good spirit and have notified the chief of police that they will obey its provisions. As the saloonmen, so far as known, are keeping their voluntary agreement not to sell on Sunday, the question of Sunday violations seems to have been satisfactorily settled in the city.

Dr. W. Y. Erwin, the corn doctor, is in the city for a week or two and orders may be left at the Payne House, corner Eighth and Main streets.

HOME COMING.Kentuckians Organized By Hundreds In Southern Cities.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 4, 1906.
 Editor Kentuckian:

I attended a meeting of the Kentucky Society of Los Angeles last Saturday evening and as it was very interesting to all present, I thought an account of it might be interesting to you.

The meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce and was called for the purpose of further completing arrangements for the Home Coming excursion. The Kentuckians here are arranging a grand excursion back to their old homes. The arrangements are to arrive in Kentucky on June first. From present appearances there will be a large number go on this excursion. Two trains have already been chartered, which means at least 600 people, and the books are not yet closed. I think when they leave here they will be 1000 strong.

I enjoyed the meeting very much, but as I have my fare paid back home the excursion proposition did not interest me. So after shaking hands all around, I hooked up with Col. Planters from Virginia, a gentleman from New York, and a man from Ohio, and took in the sights. I want to say right here that the California people certainly know how to entertain, advertise and boom their country. They, of course, have a good many things here that are produced no where else, but they certainly work over time showing them. I was very much interested in one fellow explaining the good points of California fruits, flowers, vegetables, poultry culture and live stock. I couldn't help but smile for I knew we had him beat a mile on everything except the fruit. He explained one thing though that was new to me, and that was the Pacific Preserving Company's system of preserving eggs. By their system eggs are kept nice and fresh for over a year and the cost is practically nothing. I got one of the receipts free and any one can do the same by writing to this firm.

The Kentuckians are very much in evidence in this city. Every place I go I run into somebody I know and I feel as much at home here as I do back in our own State. The Kentucky Society of Los Angeles has a membership of over 2,500 and is still growing. They meet at least once a month and the glad hand of fellowship and good old Kentucky hospitality is extended to everybody. Yours truly,
 Z. T. BULLITT.

A Kentucky Supplement.

The New York Commercial Tuesday published a supplement of sixteen pages devoted to the commercial and industrial interests of the state of Kentucky. As is natural, Louisville is given the largest share of notice, but the entire state, its advantages to manufacturers, its excellent shipping facilities, its central location, its unrivaled inducements to industrial immigration are brought out with great force. The edition should prove beneficial to Louisville and the state of Kentucky in bringing before the investing public facts that are little known.—Louisville Post. A contract was made by Hopkinsville business men for a writeup of this kind about four months ago in the New York Commercial, but nothing has been heard from it, unless it has been included in the Louisville supplement.

Lots of Dogs.

Dogs seem to be unusually numerous this spring and very few of them are of any value. The State law against the canines ought to be rigidly enforced in the city and county.

FROM THE PREFACE

"In every situation, General Lee was a great, a dominant figure. The character of Lee has been somewhat lost sight of in the study of his career, but fairly glow with all that is high and noble and true. The Bayard of the South exhibits the characteristics of the Christian gentleman to the full. His is a personality as he should be followed to be loved. In his greatness and in his simplicity he is an enduring inspiration to true method for all America—the world even."

Spring Styles Most Attractive

Though the automobile is with us always when the ground is covered with snow as well as when grass blows green, just now autos are out in great numbers; and it behooves the autolite to see to a suitable wardrobe.
For town and fashion resort one wears clothes of different order from those selected for lengthy tours, and to-day we shall discuss dress for the former occasions. Our illustration shows a fetching motor hat of pleated
gray glace trimmed only with wings.
The veil, such a prominent part of the costume of the average motor lady, is gray with black dots. The all enveloping wrap is a gray cloth of heavy material with a collar of lace.

For outing wear one sees some very attractive costumes. While voile seems the last thing in the world to choose for rough and ready purposes,
it is to be recommended for a walking suit in the city, where there are no fences to be climbed, no stone walls vaulted. It is light in weight and comes in all shades. The following proved a very desirable walking costume, both in regard to comfort and appearance—a short pleated skirt of tan voile relieved by hair lines of green; the jacket a jaunty affair, warm and snug when closed, nice for a warm day when open. From beneath the coat peeped a soft silk blouse of green. The hat was a burnt straw sailor with folded band and high-reaching bow of pleated ribbon.

Sailor hats by the time summer is well here may be worn ad nauseum,
but there is enough variety of styles to give considerable diversity. These cone-crowned hats when trimmed are really acceptable, and one sees some exceptionally smart ones. The other day I passed the window of a small exclusive shop whose products almost always bear the unmistakable stamp of style, and thought beholders the next 24 hours would be apt to see through rose-colored glasses. Every hat on display was of some shade
of old-rose, in most cases toned down with black. One of the cone-crowned sort had a black velvet bandeau, and a short black plume that made a low arch on one side. Quite a number of chic hats have their trimming to the right, a decided change from established rules. The bird of paradise is even more in vogue than in the winter, and on a smallish black hat very effective.

In Paris doctors disagree, the best gown builders not in harmony as regards modes; some hold to the sheath-

like fit, others are for empire modes and soft fall of draperies. Which makes things rather confusing for her of slender purse, who need not attempt the one new fashion since no
one fashion obtains.

The Parisians have found a charming combination in light apertures and autumnal brown, the green of the palest tint. A beautiful costume designed for Casino wear, was fash-

Cream lace in chemisette and frills for the short sleeves added to the color scheme, as did the green hat unrelieved by any touch of color.

The green hat we have had with us
these three years past, but it is as attractive as when first making appearance. On St. Patrick's day one of the shops had a window verdant with hats the color sacred to the good saint, and not one but was charming. An especially attractive moss-green model was trimmed with nothing except a great bunch of pale blue forget-me-nots, and one thought how refreshing this would be on a sultry day.

Notes of Fashions of the Day

Now the wanton lawping gets himself another crest, now vain woman sees likewise. Color, color everywhere, everything gay and festive,
the somber and sober, kept out of sight. Such flower gardens as riot on the hats, such light dresses,
everybody seems having a holiday.
There are the bluest blues, the greenest greens, the rosiest reds—no one color monopolizing the field.

On the warmest days abbreviated coats of fanciful sort have part in the afternoon promenade, but for great deal, coming in the brightest colors and in both pongee and tussore silk. Simple little lawn tunics over lars are in excellent style; so dainty and fine, and one may have a number of them at small outlay. Vells of two sorts are seen; the small face veil which ends just at the tip of the nose, and the billowing cloud which makes of the wearer a mysterious veiled lady.

The princess with double skirt effect is the latest in princess robes, but should not be affected by any but the very tall. The underskirt is long at the back, lies on the floor several inches. A princess combined with empire lines was recently displayed in New York, a gown originating across the water. It had a modified corselet skirt, so high at the back as to almost reach the line of the empire short waist; then at the front it was cut down all below the bust. The skirt was of pink silk, the waist of net, the net forming a fluffy blouse
and pretty puffed sleeves, the puff terminating above the elbow in a wide band of lace. Pink velvet straps, passed over the shoulders; the stock and chemisette were of lace. This costume would be very effective worn with coral jewelry of the pale shade
that pure pink which has no yellow
in it.

EILEEN OSMONDE.

mornings of the average day many well-dressed long coats are seen. We have chosen for our illustration this week a practical costume of the morning order, a rough brown and blue check, touches of brown, you remember, we made assertion some time ago,
was to be very smart this season.
The collar, buttons and belt of the brown and blue frock are of dark brown velvet, the hat is one of those summer felts that come in very well on the cool days, and has for trimming a long epprey feather and scarf of blue silk. This would make a very suitable costume for traveling, especially good if the travel was by water.

Costs of all lengths are worn; short coats, to be sure, in the lead. But the long redingote is still in good style, the longish box coat a novelty that has found favor, fancy boleros
very much in vogue. For automobile cloaks rajah silk, of a good substantial sort, is well liked; it sheds the dust easily, comes in attractive shades and in those that stand exposure to the sun.

Colored silk lingerie waists are a novelty that appeal to many, and may be had in the usual suit shades. The lingerie waist differs from that of last year, save that the back is now trimmed. Striped shirtings in tailored styles have returned to favor, and are a great comfort. The play waist for mornings has always had a few adherents, and now will have many since it bears the stamp of fashion.

Wash neckwear is in highest favor,
and the Windsor tie will be worn a good deal.

FIGHTS POLICE IN MIDAIR.

Demented Sailor Struggles with Om-cers on Flagpole of High Building in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O.—After receiving a demented sailor from a wind-blown flagpole, three policemen had a hard fight with the man on the roof of a 16-story building before subduing him. The sailor was from the battleship Iowa, and recently had been confined in the Boston insane asylum.

The man had slipped to the roof of the Williamson building unobserved
and had begun to climb the flagpole
when a flutter of blue caught the eye
of Sergeant of Police Hannan.

Summoning two policemen, Hannan hurried to the roof. Up climbed the man, and the wind twisted him about the pole, and seemed about to hurl him into the street 225 feet below.

Finally the policemen pulled him down by a harness that had become twisted about his leg, and then the struggle for the mastery started. The man fought fiercely until he was into substitution.

Thinking he was a deserter from the navy the officers took him to the recruiting station, where it was learned his name is J. Cline, and that he recently had been confined as insane.

Unsuited For Mutton.

Hanging to a raft in a shop at Bournemouth, Lincolnshire, England, is a leg of mutton 50 years old. It was bought from the present occupier's predecessor by a gentleman who said he would eat it for it later on. He never did so, and there it hangs today. It has so withered that it resembles a shillalah.

The Weather.

For Kentucky.—Local thunderstorms, followed by cooler Saturday afternoon or night.

Senator James B. McCreary has formerly announced his candidacy for re-election to the U. S. Senate.

Hughes, of West Virginia, has withdrawn the bill proposed for the relief of Caleb Powers.

The Powers benefit bill, drawn by John Langley, will never get out of the committee at Washington.

Wm. M. Roach, a young Philadelphia, married Miss Julia Hidalgo, a Mexican heiress, at the city of Mexico, Wednesday. It was a very well wedding.

The next reunion of the Confederate veterans will be held at Richmond, Va. The veterans from this city were expected to return from New Orleans last night.

Rev. M. F. Ham, who is now in Italy, writes to the Hopkinsville Courier that he witnessed the eruption of Vesuvius from Naples.

The Kentucky supplement of the New York Commercial, issued this week, contains half a page devoted to Hopkinsville. Illustrations shown are the Acme Mills and a picture of Dr. J. B. Jackson, president of the Commercial Club.

Wm. O. Miles, a leading lawyer of Brooklyn, and formerly assistant district attorney, has been sentenced to a year in the penitentiary and a fine of $500 for grafting. His clerk, Chas. H. Wells, received the same sentence.

After being defeated two years ago, Capt. R. P. Hobson, the hero of the Merrimack and the champion kisser of America, has this time beaten Congressman Bankhead, of the Sixth Alabama district, by 495 majority and will realize his congressional aspirations.

No such example of generosity has ever before been shown as the cities of the United States and the people have displayed in behalf of the stricken city of San Francisco. Money has poured in from all parts of the country, until the relief fund amounted on Tuesday to $8,470,370.

State Insurance Commissioner Previtt has announced the appointment of Mott Ayres, of Fulton, as fire marshal under the act of the General Assembly at its recent regular session. The place pays an annual salary of $2,400 and expenses. The law does not become operative until June 15 next. Col. Ayres is at present deputy commissioner of insurance under Commissioner Previtt.

At a conference of anti-union Presbyterians in Evansville, their attorneys decided to file injunction proceedings in the federal court at Decatur, Ill., on May 7 to prevent the union of the Cumberland Presbyterian with the Presbyterian Church. The general assembly of the former Church convenes in Decatur on May 6 and it is the intention of the majority of the presbyteries of the Church to complete the union movement, which has been on foot for four years. If the injunction is granted the greatest legal battle that has ever grown out of a Church movement will be on.

The Confederate reunion in New Orleans is a most notable gathering of the old soldiers. Gen. S. D. Lee, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate veterans, arrived Monday night, and attended a dinner at which he and "Corporal" Tanner, grand commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, were guests of honor. Two cities, Birmingham, Ala., and Richmond, Va., have been mentioned as the places for the next reunion. It is likely that Richmond will be selected, with the Jamestown exposition as an extra attraction.

HIGHEST COURT ON COW LAW.

Running of Cattle at Large
In Populous Community
a Common Nuisance.

PADUCAH TEST CASE.

Opinion By Judge O'Rear Concurred In By the Court.

The decision of the Court of Appeals last month on the Paducah case settles beyond doubt the question of the constitutionality of a "stock law" such as will go into effect here next Tuesday. In order that those not familiar with the law, may read it we give the syllabus of Judge O'Rear's opinion, which covered every possible phase of the question. It is given below and settles in advance any attempt to resist the new ordinance here.

COURT OF APPEALS DECISION.

1. Municipalities—Cattle running at large—Ordinance regulating—Validity—An ordinance of a city prohibiting cattle from running at large therein and providing for its impounding and for its sale after due notice and publication, and also imposing a fine on the owner for permitting his cattle to run at large, is not invalid on the ground that it takes effect immediately upon its passage and publication. All ordinances when regularly adopted are matters of public record of which everybody must take notice.

2. Constitutionality—Embracing more than one subject—An ordinance embracing separate sections all relating to the prevention of cattle running at large in a city, various features of which are treated by different sections, is not unconstitutional on the ground that it embraces more than one subject.

3. Presuppone guilt of owner—The ordinance is not invalid because it provides that the owner of the cattle after being summoned, "must appear in court and show cause, if any he can, why he shall not be fined for a violation of the ordinance, and why the animal shall not be sold." Such clauses do not presuppose the guilt of the owner, but merely provide that he may be summoned so that the question of his guilt may be tried, and his plea of "not guilty" puts the burden upon the city to prove his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. If the animal was found at large upon the streets under such circumstances as the ordinance penalizes, it would make a prima facie case of guilt against the owner.

which has been held to be valid in a state.

4. Due process of law—Inherent power—such ordinance is not unconstitutional on the ground that it deprives the owner of his property without due process of law. This right is exercised under the police power inherent in government, whether State or municipal. The running of cattle at large in a populous community is regarded generally as a public nuisance endangering the safety and property of the citizens, and it is competent to regulate the matter by punishing the owner as well as by proceeding in rem against the property itself.

5. Legislative discretion—The ordinance is not invalid because it does not provide for an appeal by the owner of the cattle. This is solely within the discretion of the legislature as the city cannot regulate the matter of appeals by ordinance.

6. Rural stock law—Chapter 122, Kentucky Statutes, which allows rural communities to adopt a "stock law" by vote does not apply to cities.

BY HOOK OR CROOK

It is Hoped to Prolong the Days of the Town Cow.

Persons opposed to the removal of live stock from the streets of the city are trying to raise funds by subscription to employ attorneys C. H. Bush and John Feland to resist the enforcement of the stock law, which becomes effective May 1st.

A comparison of the Hopkinsville ordinance with that recently passed in Paducah, shows that they are almost identical and as the Paducah law has been upheld by the highest court in the State, it is practically certain that the ordinance to go into effect next Tuesday will stand the test of the courts.

It is understood that the plan will be to join the city authorities from enforcing the law and thereby secure some delay.

Should this method be resorted to, it is not unlikely that a special license tax will be placed upon all cattle having the privilege of the streets and that every cow will be required to wear a bell to warn everybody of her approach. The ordinance against leaving horses unhitched may also be amended to include all kinds of live stock. If it is lawful to require horses and mules to be hitched, why not hitch the cows?

POOR OLD CLARKSVILLE

Throws a Fit Every Day
Over the Tobacco
Situation.

PRESS GROWS UGLY.

Fight Against the Tobacco
Association has Come
Out In the Open.

The growing distrust of the Clarksville market is causing the position in the matter that is losing friends for it among the members of the Dark Tobacco Association. Column after column of explanatory matter is being printed, none of which seems to satisfy. The members of the Association are by no means deceived, but are backing Col. Ewing almost to a man. They have followed his leadership long enough to know that between him and the Clarksville combine, they will trust Ewing. The members of the association know that when the Clarksville warehousemen declined to keep "hill billy" and association tobacco in separate barns, that they could not be trusted.

Manager Ewing, who talks from the shoulder, has openly charged that fraud was intended and he now finds himself arrayed against the Clarksville warehousemen and newspapers, in the fight for the people's rights. In defending the corruption of Clarksville the Leaf-Chronicle says:

"Lying, slander and blasphemy are the weapons of an atrocious design to influence the Executive Committee and thoughtless farmers to prejudice their minds against the strongest market they have and build up the markets all over the country giving the shrewd speculator and grafter a chance to mulct the easy farmer for a good take out."

This reference, of course, includes Hopkinsville and other honest markets that are getting the tobacco that used to go to Clarksville. Hopkinsville is the geographical center of the district, its warehouses are in the association, its tobacco men are honest and incorruptible, and the buyers, as well as the sellers, are not afraid to trust its business methods. As a result, Hopkinsville is getting much of the trade that has been run out of Clarksville.

Maybe after awhile the Clarksville "bunch" will realize that "honesty is the best policy."

PRETTY APRIL WEDDINGS.

South Christian Couple
About Middle of May.

Miss Letitia Fairleigh, youngest daughter of Mrs. Anna Fairleigh, and Mr. Edward Cyrd, Jr., were united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother at four o'clock Thursday afternoon. It was a pretty home wedding, witnessed by a limited number of close friends and relatives, and the members of the As You Like Club, of which the bride is a member.

The maid of honor was Miss Alice Scooby and Mr. James Eggleston, of Franklin, Tenn., was the best man. Rev. Dr. E. L. Southgate, of Nashville, performed the ceremony in his usual impressive manner. The parlors were beautifully decorated in white and green, white carnations being much in evidence.

Immediately after the ceremony, the bride donned a traveling dress and Mr. and Mrs. Cyrd left at 5:13 by the L. & N. for Franklin, Tenn., where they will visit relatives for several days before going to their home in the West.

They were accompanied to the depot by a number of friends, who showered them with rice as they boarded the train.

The bride is one of Hopkinsville's most attractive young women, whose departure will be a great loss in the social and club circles of the city.

STAR MONKEY ACTOR.

Carries Himself With the Air of Man of World—Some of His Stunts.

With Seibel Bros.' Dog and Pony Show, which will give two performances here next Monday, are a number of very extraordinary monkey actors.

The star actor of the lot appears to be a sort of Berry Wall of the '500.' His name is McAllister, and he is very proud of it. He dresses like a man and eats like a man. His table etiquette is said to be superior to that of some men. He never does the "sword swallowing act," which, in circus parlance, means using a knife instead of a fork to carry the food to the mouth. His clothes are of the latest cut, and he dresses in the height of fashion, and always enters the arena carrying a cane. He wears a silk hat and patent leather shoes, and has a valet to wait on him from the time the performance commences until it is over.

It takes half an hour to get McAllister ready for his appearance before an audience, for he is said to be very fastidious about his personal appearance. In fact the most remarkable thing about him is his vanity. His hair must be parted just right and his trousers have the proper creases, as otherwise he will insist upon delaying his appearance until his wardrobe is satisfactory. He wants to be the whole thing while he is before the audience.

Mc. does an eating act which is the hit of the show. He has his meals served hot, eats with a fork, uses a napkin, pays his check and never forgets to tip the waiter. All of which is said to be very comical, and affords unbounded delight to the little folks especially.

Seibel Bros. have many remarkable actors, including dogs, ponies and monkeys, but Mc. is the bright particular star of the outfit, and it is claimed, he is the most valuable four-footed performer in the show business.

THREE IN ONE.

Three Daily Papers of San Francisco Issue Joint Number.

Mr. James Watson has a paper published the morning after the great earthquake and fire at San Francisco on the 18th inst. It was sent to him by his brother, S. T. Watson, auditor of the Oakland Traction Co., who spent Wednesday in San Francisco, returning to Oakland after 9 o'clock that night. He wrote his brother that the various newspaper reports of the great disaster do not tell half its horrors. "The Call-Chronicle-Examiner" is a 4-page paper and was the best of the three papers could do after the destruction of the three offices. All the space is devoted to the earthquake, not a line of editorial or local matter entering into its make-up.

Revival Services at Christian Church Closed Last Night.

AN ECHO METEING.

Most Successful Individual Meeting Ever Held Here.

The labors of Dr. Crossfield here during the past eleven days have been greatly blessed. Rev. H. D. Smith, his officers and members have done one of the greatest works of their lives in assisting the evangelist in the conduct of the meetings, and the results have been greater than that of any individual church.

The additions by letter and confession since the meetings began on Monday night April 16th, up to the close of Thursday night, were 112. 6 united on confession and three by letter at the close of that service.

The singing, under the leadership of Mr. St. John, has contributed largely to the success of the meetings. He is a fine director, and as a soloist has won the admiration of almost everyone who has heard him. He is a young man of wonderful vocal power and has consecrated his talent to God. He had rather serve the Lord in the work in which he is engaged than chase dollars through the different avenues of the world's business. When we consider what he is in his young manhood as a Gospel singer, we wonder what he will be a decade hence. Dr. Crossfield said Thursday night that Mr. St. John sings for the Lord because he loves it, thinks it his duty, and though he could make two dollars for one in other occupations, yet he expects to remain in the place where God has put him and use the talent he has given him for His glory. The singer is a good conversationalist, unassuming and has made a host of friends since he came here, who will welcome his return sometime in the future.

The subject of Dr. Crossfield's sermon Thursday night was "What Will Thou Have Me Do?" In the presentation and answer to this great question of every converted soul the preacher delivered one of his most practical and instructive sermons since he has been here. It is impossible for us in our brief space to follow him through his magnificent discourse. He first spoke of what the minister should be, his thorough consecration and piety. And the people in the pews must be just like him. This desire then and causes them to shine forth to the glory of God. Then it is that the Christian wants to know what God will have them do, though they do not expect the skies to open and orally hear God's answer. God does not want us to work the whole of six days for the things of this life and give him a little part of one day. He does not only want us to make a living, he wants us to make a life. He then spoke of the waste of power—the waters of Niagara, the waste of the power in the storm and the waste of the waves of the ocean? Why cannot these great powers be harnessed and made of service to man. He spoke of these in order to point Christians to the great waste of talent. A man may spend six days of the week making a living for his family—he ought to—"but," said he, "all this time we ought to be exerting our infor him in your avocation, no matter what it is. God wants the consecration of our means. John Wesley said: "Make all you can; save all you can; give all you can." He had heard an old man say, "I have served God all my life, and it has cost me only $13." A man's pocket-book ought to be baptized with him. If a man is stingy he is almost certain to fall away from God. He then spoke at length of death-bed confessions. He does not believe in them. In a ministry of more than fifteen years he has never known of but one man carrying out what he had promised God he would do if he would let him live. To the man who had drifted away from the church and gone back into the paths of sin he made a most urgent appeal to return to God. God is good to them and wants them to come back to Him, but if a man falls and won't rise and come back to God he is off the track. If he will ask God to help him he can get back and enjoy serving God again, but he can't get back by himself. A man can rise upon the stepping stones of his dead life and go back to the Father, but he must start. Statistics prove that 90 per cent. of the men who go into business in this country fail. Suppose these men, discouraged by their failure, should never attempt to do anything again, we wouldn't have anything very long. But they rise and start again and correct the mistakes they made at first and succeed. He pleaded with the sinner to come to God, calling upon them to believe in God, repent of their sins and confess him before the world. God says to the sinner, "Do this and I'll give you the victory." The trouble with sinners is that they do not make the start or look for obstacles in their way to God. They want God to do everything. He wants them to have faith, and he throws tests of their faith across their way—baptism, confessing Him before the world, etc. But God always wants the sinner and the backslider to come back home and he will always help them on their way.

At the afternoon service yesterday there were five additions, which brings the total up to 117.

Nothing is permitted to appear that will mar the pleasure of the skeptically inclined. Neither are the usual army of fakirs (often seen following in the wake of shows) allowed to follow this organization. The long-standing reputation of the Sun Brothers throughout America and the Dominion of Canada shall not be jeopardized by allowing any catch-penny affair to be connected with their show. Fifty great celebrated artists will appear at every performance. Fully two hours and a half of enjoyment is afforded. Let all attend. Afternoons at 2 o'clock, evenings at 8 o'clock.

Vanities at the Spring Openings

HATS OF THE DAY.

It is hard for a mere woman not to fall into temptation when she goes to the great "openings" with which wily shop, merchant and milliner lure her in the days when everything she has worn during the past season begins to look hopelessly shabby. All the vanities of the feminine world are spread out before her; she finds such a lot of things just exactly her style, just her taste—also not to her purse. But just when she is beginning to wish she had not come at all, she lights upon what appeals and yet is not out of all reason as to price; for to-day the greatest variety is offered, and if one but be patient and spend time one can get a very good warm weather outfit without great expenditure.

For instance, there are really good lingerie waists to be had at reasonable prices, and ready-to-wear hats in a very good style. Yesterday as we strolled through the aisles of a store whose reputation in the world-wide we saw, whose whose coats seemed pretty high and also the most fetching bargains in the way of shirt-waists and pretty hats. And stuffs on display ranged all the way from a dotted Swiss at $2.50 a yard to a thin white goods at 15 cents, and in the latter we realized there were wonderful possibilities—fine tuckings, a bit of cream insertion with frills of white lace, a modish pattern used in the cut, and a lingerie blouse evolved equal to the one in the glass case over yonder. For the lingerie blouse of the season, the shoulder seam is moderately short; sleeve moderately full and quite short and edged with frills; the back trimmed, not, however, so elaborately as the front. The fluffy blouse is very charming worn with a corselet skirt, all the way from a dotted Swiss at $2.50 a yard to a thin white goods at 15 cents, and in the latter we realized there were wonderful possibilities—fine tuckings, a bit of cream insertion with frills of white lace, a modish pattern used in the cut, and a lingerie blouse evolved equal to the one in the glass case over yonder.

It seemed to us all the skirts on display except those of strictly utilitarian sort, were made corselet fashion. Some exquisite ones were noted; a pink messaline fitted to the waist by smallish tucks, with upper part of soft, creamy radium silk, so fine and sheer and lighted by the faintest blush of rose; a soft blue crepe de chine, the skirt bordered with three large tucks, a lovely flowered organdy much frilled, a revival of an old fashion, reminding of rosebud gardens of girls on diploma day. In the millinery section one saw beautiful colors and enough all-black hats to give pleasing contrast. Here was a pink messaline draped turban, the only trimming a couple of moss roses. Here was a hat adorned with a dozen different kinds of posies, grotesque when off the head, becoming when on. There were sailors galore, most of them trimmed more than they should have been—one had got so used to thinking of a sailor as a simple affair. Here were hats that looked as though they had been used for football, a dent here, another illogical one there, and put it on the head. It was chic, very unlike the battered affair of a moment ago. And that is what we have to say about hats; that they look awfully queer off, remarkably well on.

Again we are to tilt our headgear, not quite so much forward as last year, but give a tiny angle to one side. Oh, the vanities and the vagaries of fashion!

Yet another word about hats. The bird of Paradise is with us, with vengeance. Its trail everywhere. And peacock tones are with us in a strength, in millinery, and in gowns. One sees whole windows of peacock blue dresses, so brilliant as to be visible a very long way off. In contrast with this garishness is a new color called "banana," of which there are several shades—the range goes from palest cream to blacut and reaches its climax in a pale mustard.

ELLEN GEMOND.

Fashions for Children

Attention was called lately to the coats offered for girls, and as we looked at several models we thought the fashions most commendable. They were all of light weight and light colored wool and all made on the box order; loose and comfortable, easy to get into and over. For a girl of 12 there was a three-quarter length coat of tan cloth plaided by lines of soft green; cuffs and collar of green cloth. A twin in design was of tan and green. For an older girl was shown a semi-loose jacket of tan covert cloth, just the thing for cool summer days and very pretty with a sailor of burnt-siaw.

Lingerie hats, wash hats which can be easily pulled apart and put together again, are evidence everywhere. They are of white pique, of colored wash materials, and there are some of silk. The best dressed children one sees, almost invariably wear tubular garments; wraps, frocks, trousers all capable of immersion in the wash tub—and many hats nowadays are made with this in view. The one-piece frock continues the approved one for little girls. For a very young lady the skirt is made extremely short, belt placed low, the plaits run down to this belt and the fulness below as extreme as the skirt's brevity. There are many short-skirted frocks; a pretty fashion, for children almost always have such adorable arms.

The sailor suit for small boys has returned to favor, and the streets are to be filled with diminutive sailors men. The Norfolk has many adherents, as is popular as any models on the market. Changes in boys' fashions are seldom radical, the mothers do not have much trouble in planning designs for them. And then, too, so many things can be bought ready-made, for Master Three-Year-Old. The tailors provide even him with a satiny spring suit; he may go forth in his mother-and-purchase trousers and hat, and be as well dressed as the best of us.

THE PRACTICAL ONE-PIECE FROCK.

Promenade with the proud consciousness he is "correct." To be sure, the treasured trousers are almost hidden by the upper garment of "his suit," but they have real pockets, make the little one feel very proud and manly. And nothing gives his elder brother more pleasure than the rainy-day coat, "just like father's." The other day when skies were lowering we happened to be out and could not help noticing what smart rain coats were worn by kids of various ages. One boy of 15 or thereabouts had on a straight box coat of dark gray, as trig and neat as could be, and he trudged home in it as neat as a cat.

Southwest

The Land of BIG CROPS and PROSPERITY.

Are you making as much off your farm as you ought? No doubt you are making all you CAN. The trouble is the land costs too much. It takes too much money to buy a big farm, and so you are trying to make a living on a small farm, or perhaps you are renting one and paying a good share of what you raise, in rent. Wouldn't it be better to go where the price of good land is so little that you can own a big farm—where every acre of the ground is working for you and all you raise is paying you good profits?

There are thousands of acres of fertile land in the Southwest along the line of the Cotton Belt Route that can be bought for from $3 to $10 an acre. This land is increasing in value each year. See the Southwest at Small Cost.

A trip to the Southwest would convince you that your best interests lay in settling there. The trip can be made at very little expense. On the first and last days of each month you can purchase a round trip ticket to any point in the Southwest on or via the Cotton Belt Route at very low rates. Stop over as will be allowed for you to examine any locality you are interested in. Write at once for free copies of books describing this wonderful country and for full information about cost of tickets, etc.

DICK WASHAKIE SIGNING THE TREATY.

The name Shoshoni to-day is best known as belonging to a small band of Indians whose lands are soon to be opened to settlement. Once the Shoshoni were a mighty people, and held possession of a great domain—the mountain country of western Wyoming, adjacent portions of Colorado, Idaho, Utah and northeastern Nevada. They and their neighbors, the Banak and Plute, were frequently known as Snake Indians, a name which still clings to them. The Shoshonean stock was a group of cognate tribes whose territory stretched from the central Rocky mountain country to the Sierras, southeast into the Texas prairies, southwest to the shores of the Pacific. The principal tribes of the Shoshonean stock were the Banak, Comanche, Hopi, Kawi, Mission Indians, Plute, Ute and Shoshoni proper. To-day they number about 15,000. Of the Shoshoni proper there are left something like 2,500; the Banak and Shoshoni of Fort Hall agency, Idaho; the Shoshoni and Sheepsters, Lemhi agency, Idaho; Western Shoshoni agency, Nevada; Shoshoni agency, Wyoming.

It is of the lands of these latter Shoshones we shall speak to-day, for these are the lands soon to be opened to outsiders. The Shoshone reservation has been occupied by Shoshones and Arapahoes, each tribe numbering something like 800 members. In April, 1894, the Shoshoni and Arapahoes made a treaty with the United States whereby they ceded to the latter the northern and eastern half of the Wind River reservation. Our illustration pictures Dick Wit Washakie in the act of signing the treaty. Washakie, son of the last chief of the Shoshoni.

The Indians of this reservation have shown themselves good workers.

George Bird Grinnell, an authority on the American Indian, tells us of the Shoshone reservation Indian's considerable success as agriculturists.

The Wind River, or Shoshone Indian reservation is located in the west-central part of the state of Wyoming and has an area of about 4,900 square miles. In shape it is almost square, measuring about 70 miles on a side. It comprises the central part of the northern half of Fremont county, which is rightly called the garden spot of Wyoming.

Under the terms of the treaty, that part of the reservation lying north of the Wind river will be thrown open to settlement in June, 1906. This portion of the reservation contains about 1,500,000 acres of land. Of this the government will withhold for forest preserves, townships, etc., about 600,000 acres, and the balance will be available for homestead entry under the terms of the United States homestead laws.

That part of the reservation south of the Wind river has been taken up by the Indians in several, and many have installed themselves as small farmers. The greater portion of their lands, however, will be leased to white settlers at very reasonable rates. Under an agreement with the government each Indian is required to retain a farmstead of at least ten per cent. of his land holdings, and may lease the balance in this way, thousands of acres of land will be available for settlers, in addition to the land to be opened for homestead entry.

Irrigation ditches now being constructed by the government so that part of the reservation retained by the Indians are nearing completion, so that the greater part of the lands mentioned as available for leasing from Indians will be under irrigation by the time the land is opened.

No actual work has been done by the government as yet to irrigate that part of the reservation to be opened to settlement, although but a small percentage of these lands are suitable for agriculture without irrigation. Government engineers and surveyors, however, have gone to the territory and report about 500,000 acres of the land well suited to agriculture if irrigated.

tion can be accomplished at a very moderate cost. The conditions are somewhat similar to those in the lower half of the reservation, where the land is being irrigated at an average cost of from three to six dollars per acre, a very low figure when we consider that the government has other irrigation projects under way which cost nearly $20 per acre, and are still considered a very good investment. There are many small irrigated farms throughout this vicinity, where they raise from 30 to 40 bushels of wheat, 40 to 60 bushels of oats, 300 bushels of potatoes, two or three crops of alfalfa, cutting two to three tons each crop, while hay runs about three tons to the acre.

Such of these lands as are not easily irrigated make excellent grazing land for sheep, cattle and horses. Last year the state of Wyoming ranked second in the United States in wool production, 32,000,000 pounds being shipped out of the state, valued at $6,360,000. There are 4,500,000 sheep in the state and the value of mutton exported last year was $5,000,000.

The cattle industry in Wyoming is also very extensive, and another profitable and growing industry is the breeding of high-grade horses. Owing to the dryness of the fall and winter months, the grasses cure on the ground without losing any of their nutritive qualities and furnish feed for stock almost the entire winter, in fact thousands of head of sheep and cattle are provided with no food or shelter the entire year except what they get on the open range, their only shelter being the woods which almost invariably line the streams.

One of the first things to be considered in seeking a new home is the effect of the climate on man and beast. The mean annual temperature of the part of Wyoming is 42 degrees. The approximate elevation outside of the mountain ranges is 5,000 feet. The climate is much more equable than that of similar latitudes elsewhere. The air is always pure and dry, with abundant sunshine. The heat is never intense. In the hottest summer weather it is always cool in the shade and at night the nights are always cool. The air in winter is clear and bracing, the sparkling dry air which makes life happier and more satisfactory than it could be under the clouded skies of the east. The climate is similar to that of the mountain regions of Italy, and is not, as sometimes erroneously supposed, extraordinarily severe in winter. The average mean temperature is 44 degrees, varying somewhat according to elevation, and the atmosphere is rarified and pure, with but few cloudy days.

In general appearance Wyoming is mountainous, with valleys, rolling plains and plateaus, the latter covered with grasses of great nutrition and furnishing admirable pasture for livestock. The total area of the state is 97,890 square miles, of which probably 10,000,000 acres are covered with timber.

Flowing east or west, according as their source is on the eastern or western slope of the main range of the Rocky mountains, which cross the state from north to south, are numerous streams, chief of which are the North Platte river, Snake river, Green river, the Big Horn, the Shoshone, the Laramie and the Yellowstone. None of these streams are navigable in a commercial sense, but they furnish water for irrigation and development of the surrounding country, and in some instances are used for the transportation of timber.

Gold, copper and coal mining, petroleum production, wool and the raising of livestock are the most important business interests of the state. The area of known coal lands is 30,000 square miles, and there are coal mines in operation in every county in the state but one, some of which are producing coal at a cost of 10 cents per ton.

A DASHING AUTOMOBILE STORY

A Motor-Car Divorce

By LOUISE CLOSSER HALE

A BREEZY and deliciously humorous motor-car romance—the fact that the hero and heroine are man and wife makes it no less a romance.

Mrs. Ward, a believer in the theory of the ten-year marriage contracts advanced by George Meredith, goes with her indulgent husband on an automobile tour through France and Italy for the purpose of securing a divorce on the grounds of "incompatibility of temper," which, in reality, do not exist. It takes another woman, several accidents and the automobile to bring Mrs. Ward to her proper senses.

BAPTISTS AT GRACEY

Three Days' Convention of Ministers and Members.

A LENGTHY PROGRAM.

Dinner on Grounds for All Today and Tomorrow.

A three days' ministers' and members' meeting began at West Union Baptist church, Gracey, yesterday. The introductory sermon was delivered by Rev. J. T. Cunningham.

Among the various subjects to be discussed will be "Proper Observance of the Sabbath," "Church Independence," "Can Baptists Consistently Receive Alien Immersion?" "Attitude of Church Toward Politics," "Divorces," "Duties of Deacons," "Sunday Schools," etc.

Many of the leading Baptists of the Little River Association, as well as visitors from other associations, will attend.

The meeting will last through today and tomorrow. Sunday will be the big day, when dinner will be provided for everybody who may attend.

The Kentucky Press Association has decided to meet at Grayson Springs on July 23rd, where the editors will remain a week or longer having a social good time and enjoying the delights of the springs and they will then come to this city for a two or three days' stay. The business sessions will be held here and the officers elected. All their time, however, will not be taken up with business matters, for the city will provide a program of entertainment such that time will not hang heavily on their hands while they are within the gates of the city. They will not take the usual jaunt across the country, but will spend the entire time at Grayson Springs and in this city. A committee will be appointed by the Commercial Club to-night to arrange for their entertainment. — Bowling Green News.

LOCAL LEAFLETS.

The Louisville Board of Trade is alive the year round. The excursions to different towns in the State, which proved so popular last year, are to be resumed and about 200 of the leading houses will be represented in the first excursion, set for May 22. There is no indication that they will come this way.

There is a great deal of travel over the railroad at this time. Traveling men are quite numerous and the register at Hotel Latham would "show up" well with registers in larger cities than this.

Notwithstanding the rather summer-like days of late, the skating public still keeps at it, every night hundreds gather at the rinks.

Fishermen are lined up on the river banks all about here and far away. Parties of from four to eight can be seen almost any day starting out with their tackle and "bait." Fishing is said to be fine this year.

The papers announce that Mrs.

Navarro (Mary Anderson) will cross the ocean to be in Louisville during Home Coming week. Mary Anderson played "The Lady of Lyons" in the old Mozart Hall here in 1876 on her first starring tour. There was not half a house, but that was before she became famous. From here she went South, going to New Orleans, whose people appreciated her talent and gave her a start in the world.

Mr. George Wood, who is now in his 82d year, says that his grandfather, Mr. B. T. Wood, settled here in 1786. At that time he owned 250 acres of land and Hopkinsville of today was a hunting ground. Indiana, buffalo, elk, bear and deer were plentiful. The Indians gradually disappeared, then the buffalo and other wild animals followed. The cows will follow next Tuesday. It will be "home leaving week" with the "poor" animals, but not many tears will be shed over their departure.
